Overview: Organized by the Integrated Program in the Environment (IPE) at Indiana University, the Summer Experience in Sustainability & the Environment (SESE) Program is a one-week virtual summer camp engaging high school students in educational experiences focused on the environment and sustainability. SESE provides students with participatory, in-depth explorations of various sustainability issues, including climate justice, outdoor recreation and health, sustainable fashion, urban green infrastructure, and environmental communication. SESE also introduces students to university degree options and co-curricular activities at IU-Bloomington, as well as career paths in environmental fields.
